THE MYSTERY OF THE FALL SEASON

I pray that from his glorious, unlimited resources he will empower you with inner strength through his Spirit. Then Christ will make his home in your hearts as you trust in him. Your roots will grow down into God's love and keep you strong (Ephesians 3:16-17 NLT).

Within a week's time, our world snapped into fall. The garden is taking one last breath as it bursts with dahlias in corals and reds. Subconsciously, I reach for my orange sweater before I slip out to cut a bouquet. Without trying, I'm mirroring nature's colors too.

I love fall - with its steaming cups of coffee and tea by the fire, the coziness of couch cuddling, and book reading. I love the candles flickering and soup and crusty sourdough bread always there to warm our bellies.

But I don't anticipate the cold winter that trails close on the heels of fall. I don't want to forget, but really enjoy this season.

For what it is.
For the wild and lavish colors in the trees.
For the staggering sunsets.
Seasons bring growth ... just like they bring change.

This next winter will lay open a clear choice for me: Will I choose to cultivate a heart and home of peace while it's cold and long with Daniel gone?

There are seasons that bear rich and abundant visible fruit - garden baskets overflowing with tomatoes, okra, and zinnias.

Then there are other seasons that seem fruitless, frozen, even dead. But far below that cold soil... God is inviting us to grow, to let Him cultivate deep and unseen yet intimate connection through those "barren" days.

Don't be afraid if you are in a quiet season - a misunderstood or overlooked one. Don't be afraid if you are called off the normal path, even the "right" one.

Don't be afraid of the quiet.
Of discomfort.
Take a deep breath.
Be present for it.
For all of it.

Let God peel back the crusty layers of your heart so He can pour His holiness deep into your veins. The calling away feels salty. Expensive. Like a waste.

Maybe you water your broken chapter with tears, mixing it with oil too expensive to keep to yourself. Maybe it all feels so wrong, yet you know it is right. This season is for your good. What is watered in tears and purified by His fire will burst from your "fall" season into rich, brilliant life.

Roots will hold strong ... resilient enough for the next storm. He knows how to prepare you.

Come pick dahlias in the golden evening light with me. Gather colors and fill your home with visible reminders of His love and provision.

GOD IN THE DETAILS

It had been an awful week for Kevin and Kimberley. Kevin's seizures had suddenly worsened, and he'd been hospitalized. Amid the pandemic, their four young children - siblings adopted from foster care - were taking cabin fever to a new extreme. On top of that, Kimberley couldn't scrounge up a decent meal from the fridge. Oddly, at that moment, she craved carrots.

An hour later, there was a knock at the door. There stood their friends Amanda and Andy with an entire meal she'd prepared for the family. Including carrots.

They say the devil is in the details? No. An amazing story in the history of the Jewish people shows God is in the details. Pharaoh had commanded Every Hebrew boy that is born you must throw into the Nile (Exodus 1:22). That genocidal development turned on a remarkable detail. Moses' mother did indeed "throw" her baby into the Nile, albeit with a strategy. And from the Nile, Pharaoh's own daughter would rescue the baby whom God used to rescue His People. She would even pay Moses' mother to nurse him! (2:9).

One day from this fledgling Jewish nation would come a promised baby boy. His story would abound with amazing details and divine ironies. Most importantly, Jesus would provide an exodus out of our slavery to sin.

Even - especially - in the dark times, God is in the details. As Kimberley will tell you, "God brought me carrots!"
